

Agata Kubala, Ph.D., an archaeologist, graduate of the Institute of Archaeology at the Jagiellonian University, and Assistant Professor at the Institute of Art History, the University of Wrocław. She conducts research on the art of the ancient Near East in the 1st millennium B.C. and the art of ancient Greece with particular emphasis on ancient objects from the former Breslau (presently Wrocław) museum collections. She participated in excavations in Cyprus, Israel, and Syria. In addition, she is the author of the book entitled Greek and Persian Influences in the Art of Anatolia from the Middle of the 6th until the End of the 4th Century B.C. (Krakow 2006; in Polish) and has published articles devoted to ancient art in Études et Travaux, Studia Archaeologica, Silesia Antiqua, Athens Journal of History. Professor Kubala also is a participant of international interdisciplinary conferences at Athens, Wrocław, and Antalya.

The presented book is the first comprehensive study of seals that originated in the territory of southern Anatolia and northern Syria in the time span from the 10th to the 8th century B.C., commonly referred to as Neo-Hittite. The objects discussed in the publication are currently housed at sixteen museums and private collections. The aim of the book is to define the phenomenon called “Neo-Hittite glyptic” based primarily on iconographic, but also stylistic analysis of whole scenes as well as separate motifs decorating seals included in this category. It will help to answer the basic question if we are justified in using the term Neo-Hittite to determine seals to which such a label was applied by modern scholars.

Contents

Introduction	1
1. Cultural Contacts of the Luwians with Neighbouring Peoples	3
2. Shapes of Neo-Hittite Seals	9
3. Catalogue of Seals	15
4. Iconography of Neo-Hittite Seals	35
4.1. Animals Appearing Singly or in Groups	37
4.2. Fantastic Creatures Depicted Singly or in Pairs	49
4.3. Animals Combined with Fantastic Creatures	58
4.4. Scenes with Participation of Men and Animals or Fantastic Creatures	59
4.5. Scenes with Participation of One or Some Men	73
5. Origin of Iconographic Motifs	89
6. Meaning of Iconographic Elements and Purpose of Seals	103
 Appendix 1. List of other discussed objects	 107
Appendix 2. List of hieroglyphic signs on the Neo-Hittite seals mentioned in the text	108
 References	 109
Table 1. Frequency of occurrence of separate iconographic motifs	115
Table 2. Co-occurrence of separate motifs	116
Map	118
List of illustrations	119
Drawings	123
Photographs	133