

Preface

Yanne Broux

Ancient profiles exploited: First results of Named Entity Recognition applied to Latin inscriptions

Mark Depauw & Yanne Broux

Identification in Graeco-Roman Egypt: The modalities of expressing filiation

Esther Garel

Le titre παικογ dans les documents coptes fayoumiques

Urpo Kantola

Social standing and Latin names in Greek: Case studies on name catalogues of the early imperial period

Małgorzata Krawczyk

Paternal onomastical legacy vs. illegitimacy in Roman epitaphs

Thomas Kruse

The labeling of strangers and aliens in Roman Egypt

Micaela Langellotti

Occupations and naming trends in first-century Tebtunis and Philadelphia

David Lewis

Notes on slave names, ethnicity, and identity in Classical and Hellenistic Greece

Maria Nowak

Get your free corn: The fatherless in the corn-dole archive from Oxyrhynchos

Paweł Nowakowski

‘And there, unworthy as I was, I wrote the names of my parents’: The family identity of supplicants in pilgrims’ graffiti and dedicatory inscriptions from the Late Roman and Byzantine East

Tuomo Nuorluoto

Emphasising matrilineal ancestry in a patrilineal system: Maternal name preference in the Roman world

Christian Ammitzbøll Thomsen

The ‘Thirteenth Deme’ of Lindos