

Contents

Introduction: The ethnography of historiography developed in the Polish People's Republic / 9

Chapter 1

'Being there'

1.1. Górski's methodological reflection between the wars and during his stay in a prisoner-of-war camp / 31

1.2. Post-war methodological reflection / 37

1.2.1. Immanently historical interpretation / 40

1.2.2. Transcendent interpretation of history / 55

1.2.3. Truth in history / 59

Chapter 2

'Being here'

2.1. The time between the wars: The Second Polish Republic / 61

2.1.1. Revival movement: Thomism and personalism / 61

2.1.2. Building a new Christian cultural order / 72

2.1.2.1. The crisis in contemporary culture and overcoming it / 74

2.1.2.2. A new historical ideal of Christian culture / 77

2.1.2.3. A new ideal of man / 79

2.1.2.3.1. A person and an individual / 80

2.1.2.3.2. Man and society / 86

2.1.3. A modern ideal of Christian culture / 89

2.2. Post-war: The Polish People's Republic / 91

Chapter 3

Koinologia

3.1. Koinologia and philosophy / 106

3.2. Koinologia and research practice: sociological and anthropological turn / 113

- 3.2.1. Koinologia and sociology: ‘a sociological point of view in history’ / 115
- 3.2.2. Koinologia and cultural anthropology / 119
- 3.3. Studying small closed communities: a transcendent interpretation of history / 127
- 3.4. Cultural climate / 135

Chapter 4

History as the history of divine grace

- 4.1. The theological foundation of culture and its history / 145
- 4.2. Research on Christianity in Poland as a study of personal and social attitudes to God / 150

Chapter 5

The case of Karol Górski on the cultural map of historiography developed in the Polish People’s Republic and its diagnosis

- 5.1. The place of Karol Górski’s historical writing on the cultural map of historiography developed in communist Poland / 169
 - 5.1.1. The non-scientistic direction of the modernisation of Polish historiography / 170
 - 5.1.2. The scientific and non-scientistic anthropologisation of Polish historiography / 179
- 5.2. Anthropologising history: a diagnosis of Karol Górski’s case / 183
 - 5.2.1. The sensitising concept of anthropologising history / 184
 - 5.2.2. Diagnosing Karol Górski’s case: developing the sensitising concept of anthropologising history / 190

Conclusions / 193

Biographical timeline of Karol Górski / 197

List of sources and literature / 205

Name Index / 221